The health tech startup offers an online platform for telemedicine, electronic medical records and disease management.

Medimetry, currently operational in Delhi-NCR has raised an undisclosed amount in seed funding led by US-headquartered hedge fund BlueSky Capital Management.

The health tech startup offers an online platform for telemedicine, electronic medical records and disease management.

The company started out as an online doctor consultation platform that connects doctors with patients in real time. It is now building a digital disease management platform for chronic ailments.

Medimetry plans to use the fresh capital for sales, marketing and to upgrade its digital disease management platform.
