Speaking at the inauguration of the expo, Yogesh Mudras said, "With the 12 edition of the CPhI & P-MEC India expo along with the India Pharma Week shifting to Delhi-NCR region, an important chapter in the pharma industry has unfolded today. According to our worldwide reputation pharma report, the CPhI Global Pharma Index, India has taken huge strides in terms of its reputation with a 10.92 per cent rise in reputation. This is the maximum increase globally and extremely impressive given the quality and compliance issues it had faced previously. It also ranks no 1 in terms of pharma market growth potential and is in the top 3 countries in terms of competitiveness. A lot of it is the result of government initiatives focusing on improving the health infrastructure especially in the rural markets, providing fiscal incentives, and streamlined development procedures, based on recommendation by industry thought leaders.”

“With the key stakeholders of the pharma industry congregated under the giant umbrella of the IPW here, these are some of the subjects -- along with the business -- that we will take to the next level at the power-packed sessions and engagements of this unrivalled celebration of the pharma industry,” he added.

"CPhI and PMEC India offer a great platform to showcase products to our customers and network with existing and new clients. Given the number of suppliers that participate every year, CPHI-PMEC India has established itself as a premiere event in this segment. Customers not just from India but also from Middle-east, Africa and surrounding Asian countries attend the show to view products and explore new technologies and suppliers. We at Thermo Fisher have been consistently exhibiting at this event over the past nine years and have always received a great response. We presented our solutions through two separate booths, one each in CPhI and PMEC respectively. While the CPhI booth showcases our range of laboratory chemicals, consumables and lab equipment, the booth in PMEC offers customers glimpse into our industry leading cutting-edge analytical solutions in chromatography, mass spectrometry, molecular and elemental spectroscopy, informatics and data management. The 2018 show was a great success and offered an opportunity to interact with prospective clients. Customers were excited to see the workflow approach and appreciated our initiatives to provide holistic solutions that align with our mission to enable our customers to make the world healthier, cleaner and safer", pointed out Amit Chopra, Managing Director and VP/ GM India and Middle East, Thermo Fisher Scientific.
