Glamyo Health announces Invisible Aligners, widens dental treatment portfolio

29 October 2021 | News

The brand has set an aim to reach more than 100,000 customers in the next 12 months

New Delhi-based Glamyo Health, an asset-light healthcare startup operating in the field of elective surgeries has launched the service of Invisible Aligners in addition to their elective surgery portfolio.

The brand has set an aim to reach more than 100,000 customers in the next 12 months. The startup now boasts a strong portfolio across elective surgeries and aesthetic treatments and plans to add three to four new categories in the next two quarters.

Through the widespread network of Glamyo Healthcare centres, patients will be able to avail treatment across five cities and the startup aims to perform 1000 treatments per month by the end of this fiscal year.

“With the launch, we are introducing a new age solution for the patients that are invisible and convenient, While we are launching the service in Delhi to begin with, we plan to expand our services to top 5 metro cities in the next 3-6 months,” said Archit Garg, co-founder of Glamyo Health.
