Sapio, Quantum to launch primary health guidance centres across India

08 November 2021 | News

The venture will start with 1500 centres in phases

Government advisory firm Sapio Analytics and corporate healthcare leader Quantum CorpHealth, based in Mumbai, have entered a joint venture to serve the citizens of India, through a combination of physical healthcare centres and artificial intelligence supported virtual guidance.

The venture shall create India’s largest chain of branded primary healthcare guidance centres in every village of India, starting with 1500 centres in phases.

The centres shall create digital access for the citizens of the region to well-qualified doctors, diagnostic centres, pharmacy facilities, ambulance facilities and all other healthcare needs.

The venture shall operate through a network of over 3000 diagnostics/medical centres, 500 plus hospitals, with 10,000 plus medical professionals (doctors and paramedics) onboarded. Led by Dr Narendra Vankar and Dr Bhavya Vankar, Quantum has set up infrastructure across India.
