Wolters Kluwer appoints Greg Samios and Dr Peter Bonis in team

16 November 2021 | News

Greg Samios has joined as the President & CEO of Clinical Effectiveness and Dr Peter Bonis joins as CMO for the Health division

Wolters Kluwer Health has appointed Gregory Samios as President & CEO, Clinical Effectiveness and Dr Peter Bonis as Chief Medical Officer (CMO) of the division, effective December 1, 2021.

Samios succeeds Dr Denise Basow, who moved out after 25 years of service. Samios brings decades of experience as a customer-focused executive in the healthcare and legal information sectors. Most recently, he served as President and CEO of Health Learning, Research & Practice (HLRP). Previously, he held executive leadership roles at Kaplan Test Prep and Admissions, Reed Elsevier, Excerpta Medica, and Elsevier Health Sciences. Samios earned an MBA at Duke University and graduated from the University of Rochester with a BS and MS in Engineering.

Dr Bonis, who has served as Chief Medical Officer of Clinical Effectiveness since 2015, will now expand his scope to oversee division-wide industry partnerships, research and development initiatives, and deep collaborations with customers and partners. He was instrumental in the development of UpToDate into the leading clinical decision support tool used by doctors globally. Dr Bonis is a graduate of Harvard University and New York University School of Medicine. He was an assistant professor at Yale University School of Medicine and is currently an adjunct professor of medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine.
