Bapna brings in-depth industry expertise and learnings in building robust, scalable business solutions

MyHealthcare announced the appointment of Sanjay Bapna as its Chief Commercial Officer. Bapna will be responsible for driving the business traction across all MyHealthcare platforms, including its AI offerings through institutional sales, strategic partnerships and other high growth revenue initiatives. With 30 years of experience across healthcare and technology, Bapna brings in-depth industry expertise and learnings in building robust, scalable business solutions.

A specialist in overall business strategy, he completed his engineering from NIT Kurukshetra. Previously, Bapna has held key positions in multinational organisations such as L&T, Hewlett Packard and Phillips where he has led large business units. He has worked with healthcare start-ups such as Doxper, leading their corporate and institutional sales and building a successful growth trajectory.
