

TabletWise.net launches multilingual medicine websites for India

05 April 2022 | News

TabletWise.net, a leading health information website, announced the launch of India's largest consumer medicine websites in Hindi, Tamil, and Telugu

TabletWise.net provides trustworthy information on uses, composition, and side effects for over 4 lakh commonly used medicines on a global basis. Now consumers can access critical, easy-to-read, and up-to-date information on medicinal uses, side effects, dosage, and more, in Hindi (<https://www.????.net>), Tamil (<https://www.????????.com>), and Telugu (<https://www.????????.com>).

Medicine information page for Combiflam on ????.net/????????.com/????????.com (PRNewsfoto/TabletWise.net)

Dr Manish Arora, the co-founder of TabletWise.net says, "We fulfil an important patient need in the Indian health care system by making medicine information easily available. Now with the launch of our multilingual sites in Hindi, Tamil, and Telugu, consumers can discover the uses and side-effects of medicines anywhere, anytime, in a language that they easily understand."

"During the COVID pandemic, there has been a huge rise in the need for consumers to find information on medicines. This inspired us to create a set of multilingual websites powered by AI/ML-based language translation technologies," said Aditya Puri, Project Manager at TabletWise.net.

The multilingual websites comprise information pages for over 4 lakh medicines (including common medicines such as Combiflam, Unienzyme, and Meftal Spas) and 5,000 diseases. ????.net also provides over 50,000 words of translated information on pregnancy in Hindi sourced from the National Institute of Health (NIH), USA.