Appoints Indranil Mukherjee as Group CEO and Armin Kiser as MD and COO for the company's Europe operations

Interventional cardiovascular device company Translumina has appointed Indranil Mukherjee as Group Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and Armin Kiser as Managing Director (MD) and Chief Operating Officer (COO) for the company's Europe operations.

Mukherjee is a veteran in the healthcare industry. In his most recent role as Managing Director at B Braun Group in India, he turned around and delivered sustainable profitable growth, managing several product lines (across three production plants) and a team of over 2,000 colleagues in India.

Kiser has deep technical experience in the med-tech industry encompassing six sigma, lean manufacturing and change management best practices. He was previously the Chief Operating Officer at Biedermann Motech, a developer and manufacturer of innovative implants and instruments for spinal and extremity surgery. Prior, Kiser was the site leader for Edward's manufacturing facility in Switzerland.
