Using the funds to expand and scale up

Health tech startup DocPlix has raised Rs 5 crore in its Pre-Series A round led by Eris Lifesciences with the participation of other angel investors. In February 2022, it raised Rs 1.2 core in Seed Round with participation of angel investors.

The Lucknow-based startup will use the funds to scale up, R&D and expand its operation. Dr Varun Garg, CEO, DocPlix said that " Docplix is looking to expand its operations in western, southern and central India."

Founded in 2021, Docplix is building an ecosystem making seamless data exchange between doctors and patients possible. It also provides technology products for clinics and hospitals which lets them deliver an exceptional visitor experience to patients. DocPlix Rx is a powerful electronic medical records system for clinics and hospitals which helps doctors to grow their practice and helps them to deliver smart patient care.

It claims to have boarded over 2000 plus doctors including specialties like endocrinologists, cardio vascular surgeons, dermatologists, oncologists, dentists and others. The company is eying to onboard 5000 doctors through its speech to text EHR in next 10 months and sell 5000 licences of its medical algorithms based chatbot , Panini.

The company aims to serve more than 3000 patients in the next 12 months.
