

St. George's University announces new 5-Year medical degree pathway in India

19 April 2023 | News

A great opportunity that serves as an ideal point of entry into the medical space

St. George's University (SGU), Grenada, in association with Ramaiah Group of Institutions, has announced that applications are open for its September 2023 intake, starting in India. This association offers a 5-Year Medical Degree Pathway, where students can complete the first year of the pathway at Ramaiah International Medical School, Bengaluru.

The pathway provides an opportunity for students to benefit from two medical institutions while learning from each other and the community, along with experiencing a diverse range of clinical rotations in the US or UK. This pathway does not require Indian students to sit for the NEET or the MCAT to apply.

Ramaiah's association with SGU offers students the opportunity to experience medical education on an international level. Both organisations are giving students the exposure they need to succeed in their careers as medical professionals anywhere in the world. Moreover, students get to begin their medical education in Bengaluru, and forge enduring bonds with their peers, before moving for the Four Year Doctor of Medicine programme.

SGU India pathway offers an environment that brings practice-based learning to the fore and allows students to experience multiple global healthcare systems before starting their careers as professional medical practitioners.