New age networking platform for specialised doctors launches in India

03 May 2023 | News

Built by combining disruptive digital technologies in the medical and healthcare domain

Mumbai-based startup EPC Tech has announced the formal launch of Medgami, a first-of-its-kind, one-stop networking and knowledge platform that facilitates engagement between doctors in India and helps them build their peer network.

Medgami uses algorithms to provide healthcare specialists with personalised content in the form of CME videos, case simulations, live surgery recordings, info-graphics, interactive quizzes, latest news & summaries from premier medical journals. The platform also provides disease awareness and patient educational content that doctors can share with their patients with a single click.

It allows doctors to discuss patient cases and facilitates learning from the experiences of other specialists. The platform suggests events related to specialists' fields based on their location and area of interest. It also provides user-generated content in the form of posts, videos, images, polls, documents, etc. Medgami has plans to onboard doctors in other specialities such as Dermatology, Ophthalmology, etc. and is targeting to enrol over 100,000 doctors this year.
