Ipca Laboratories has acquired 100 percent share capital of Onyx Research Chemicals, which is a holding company of Onyx Scientific, through its wholly-owned subsidiary in the UK, namely Ipca Laboratories UK. The acquisition will bring together two contract manufacturing organizations (CMOs) on a global basis, says a statement released by the company.

Onyx Scientific is a chemistry solution provider and, post acquisition, it will continue to operate out of its facility in Sunderland, UK, under the Onyx Scientific tradename. Onyx Scientific's expertise in chemistry services for medicinal, pre-clinical and phase I/II programs will dovetail effectively with Ipca's capabilities in supporting phase II to commercially scale programs.

Ipca laboratories, based out of Mumbai, is well-established domestically and has strong thrust on exports. It exports to over 110 countries and that accounted for 55 percent of its turnover.
