Hyderabad-based startup Mexple, a leader in innovative personal medical products, has announced the launch of its ground breaking UroMen and UroWomen urine collection kits for male and female in incontinence category.

These new products are set to revolutionise patient care by combining advanced design, comfort, and functionality, addressing a critical market need for superior home medical care product.

With the increasing demand for home medical products that seamlessly blends functionality and comfort, Mexple's UroMen and UroWomen kits stands out as a significant advancement. These kits are designed to cater to the diverse needs of patients requiring urine collection solutions, ensuring an optimal user experience.

"Our goal is to enhance patient care by delivering products that not only meet but exceed the expectations of our users. MEXPLE UroMen & UroWomen collection bags limits the contact between urine and your skin which reduces irritations and infections, as well as limits the odour that others may smell when using an adult diaper. The external urinary catheters don't restrict movement and can be more discreet than a diaper or an indwelling catheter. That's the reason, UroMen and UroWomen kits embody the commitment to excellence" said Iftekhar Ahmed, Co-founder & CEO, Mexple.

Wearable urine collector is made of silicone material, no stimulate and allergy to skin. Re-useable, easy to clean. Unique padded rim creates a better seal and increased comfort as compared to typical urinals.
