Equipped with cutting-edge technology, ensuring optimal sterility

Breach Candy Hospital, one of Mumbai's most renowned healthcare institutions, has unveiled its new state-of-the-art Modular Operation Theatres (OTs) in collaboration with Dräger India, a global leader in medical and safety technology.

As part of its continued commitment to providing world-class healthcare services, the modular operating theatres aim to elevate surgical standards and improve patient care.

The journey commenced with the installation of three Modular Operation Theatres in the hospital's new building, marking a significant transition for Breach Candy Hospital towards modern surgical infrastructure. Recognising the potential for further enhancement, the hospital decided to expand its modular operating room theatres further in the coming years.

The project posed a unique challenge as the operating theatre complex remained functional throughout the construction, requiring meticulous care to maintain sterility and ensure patient safety. The collaboration between Breach Candy Hospital and Dräger India resulted in a seamless upgrade. The new modular system not only meets international standards but also reflects a shared vision of improving healthcare delivery.

The newly added modular operation theatres at Breach Candy Hospital are equipped with cutting-edge technology, ensuring optimal sterility, performance, and patient safety. Built with high-quality materials, these state-of-the-art OTs minimise infection risks, contributing to better surgical outcomes. Their thoughtful design enhances workflow efficiency and surgical team comfort, while advanced safety standards create optimal conditions for complex procedures.
