Nanavati Max Super Speciality Hospital will extend advanced organ transplantation services

Nanavati Max Super Speciality Hospital, Mumbai, has entered into a pioneering medical services agreement with Uzbekistan's Namangan Viloyat Republic Hospital. This structured cross-border collaboration aims to facilitate knowledge exchange and clinician training across key specialties, including multi-organ transplantation, oncology, orthopaedics, bone marrow transplant (BMT), and urology.

As part of the agreement, Nanavati Max Super Speciality Hospital will extend advanced organ transplantation services to patients from Uzbekistan in India. In addition, the hospital will provide structured training to surgeons at Namangan Viloyat Republic Hospital (NVRH) by demonstrating surgical procedures during operations conducted at NVRH. Selected NVRH surgeons will also undergo advanced training at Nanavati Max Hospital in Mumbai.

These collaborative initiatives will serve as hands-on learning opportunities for NVRH surgeons and operating room staff, enhancing their clinical expertise and significantly expanding the scope of advanced treatment options available to patients in Uzbekistan.

The partnership will establish a streamlined care pathway for Uzbek patients seeking advanced treatment in India. A dedicated coordinator will manage all aspects of the patient journey, including visa facilitation, airport transfers, accommodation, interpreter services, admission formalities, insurance pre-approvals, tariff counseling, and transparent communication with clinical teams. This comprehensive support allows patients and their families to focus fully on treatment and recovery.
