Institute of Medicine & Law and Maharashtra National Law University ink MoU to advance Medico-Legal Education and Research

05 November 2026 | News

Fostering a deeper understanding of healthcare laws and regulations in India

The Institute of Medicine & Law (IML) and Maharashtra National Law University, Mumbai (MNLU) have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) to foster academic collaboration, research, and capacity building in the emerging field of Healthcare Laws.

The MoU was formally signed by Prof. (Dr) Dilip Ukey, Vice-Chancellor, Maharashtra National Law University and Ravindra Mangal, Executive Director, Institute of Medicine & Law.

Key areas of collaboration under the MoU include: Joint organisation of seminars, conferences, workshops, and courses on Laws in Healthcare; Collaborative research and publications on contemporary legal issues in healthcare; Development of specialised academic programmes; Student internships and expert lectures.

The MoU is expected to benefit law students, medical professionals, researchers, and policymakers by fostering a deeper understanding of healthcare laws and regulations in India.

Speaking on the occasion, Prof. (Dr) Dilip Uke said, "This MoU aligns perfectly with our vision to promote interdisciplinary legal education and address real-world challenges at the intersection of law, medicine, and public health."

Ravindra Mangal added, "This collaboration with a premier institution like MNLU, Mumbai will ensure that the pragmatic knowledge of IML coupled with the academic excellence of MNLU will bring great value to all stakeholders in healthcare. With litigation and ethical issues in healthcare becoming increasingly complex, there is a pressing need to create legally aware medical professionals and medically aware legal professionals."
