

UAS Labs to expand India business

30 October 2014 | News | By BioSpectrum Bureau

UAS Labs to expand India business

UAS Labs, a major player in probiotics has announced plans to further invest in the growing Indian probiotics market. The company has been active in India for several years with a solid business base and loyal customers. There has been a significant increase in interest amongst top pharmaceutical and nutraceutical companies in UAS Labs' industry-leading probiotic products and services. To meet this increased demand, the company has decided to unveil its new facility.

"We are delighted to have officially established UAS Life Sciences in India. It will operate not only as a hub for our growing India-based business interests, but will also allow us to better serve our expanding Asian customer base. UAS looks forward to bringing more of our scientifically based probiotic formulations to this dynamic market," said UAS Labs' president and CEO Mr Kevin Mehring.

The company has hired Mr Subramanya Shastry Kavuri to develop its operations in India. He brings 29 years of international experience in sales and technical marketing to UAS Labs including several years focused on probiotics.