

Theorem Clinical Research join hands with Biomedical Systems

18 February 2015 | News | By BioSpectrum Bureau

Theorem Clinical Research join hands with Biomedical Systems

Theorem Clinical Research and Biomedical Systems have formed a strategic partnership to expand the suite of services available to clients worldwide.

"Theorem's business strategy is to offer our clients the very best available services in every research area," said Mr John Potthoff, president and CEO, Theorem . He added, "Biomedical Systems is one of the true pioneers in our industry, supervising breakthrough research innovations in centralized cardiac safety, pulmonary function, imaging, scientific affairs and electronic clinical outcome assessment (eCOA). The company's broad range of capabilities and global scale are a complement to Theorem studies being conducted around the world."

Mr Tim Barrett, CEO, Biomedical Systems said, "The right strategic alliance strengthens both companies, empowering us both to offer enhanced services to our clients. We believe this alliance with Theorem creates a synergy that will be a benefit to all."